The North-West at Chicago

Mining Exhibits. Canadian Success in Live Stock.—North-West School Exhibits —The Indians.

Canadian Pavilion, World's Fair, Chicago, Oct. 26.—Last week's letter dealt with the North-West agricultural and horticultural exhibits. In the Mining building, looking somewhat dwarfed beside the pretentious display from the eastern provinces, is an interesting collection sent by the North-West Government, and which includes building stone from Red Deer, Indian Head, and Calgary; white brick from Regina, Calgary and Mitford; red brick clay from Red Deer and Eastern Assiniboia; fin building sand and pottery clay, natural ar and tar sand from Athabasca r er petroleum from Oil Creek, Alberta coal from Christie & Willock's mines, Alberta, immense block of bituminous coal from Lethbridge blocks of anthracite from the McNeill mines at Anthracite and Canmore; lignite from Edmonton, Estevan, Red Deer and Hassard's; large cards in large type inform the visitor that "One of the most important features of the Canadian North West is the unlimited supply of good coal.

The general mining exhibit from the Dominion compares favorably with anything in the building. There is no finer exhibit of mica, and the asbestos exhibit from Quebec is unexcelled in curiosity and interest. Other notable features are iron ore from Drummondville, Quebec; copper ore from the same province; a fine trophy of phosphate from Buckingham; gold and silver ore and mercury, and an immense pyramid of gold bricks representing the volume of gold derived from the Placer Mines of British Columbia since 1852, value $56,52,6152.

In the Women's Building, a large, ornamental structure mainly devoted to fancy work, I discovered a fine piece of marble statuary representing a sportsman and his dogs, "executed" so the inscription informed me, "par Madame la Duchess d'Uzes, pour l'Eglise St. Hubert, Assiniboia, Canada.

During a round of the stock pavilion, I found the show of cattle and horses all over and the animals taken home. Sheep and swine were there, however, in great force. A two-year old sow was shown me, which weighed 710lbs. A sow in another pen was labelled 829.lbs, and was too fat to stand. Many of the sheep were in the same uncomfortable condition. One breed of sheep, the Dorset Horns, shown by a breeder from Uxbridge, Ont have the peculiarity of yielding two crops of lambs annually. Some of the ewes had lambed during the Fair. The Dorset Horns are hardy and vigorous. The horns are a novelty, growing as they do on both rams and ewes. The horns are useful because they render the animals dog proof. Southdowns, Shropshires, Cheviots, Merinos, Hampshire Downs and other breeds are largely represented. A rough glance over the shipping lists showed that while Americans had 413 animals in the mutton classes, against our 310, the awards stood; Canada 61 firsts against the United States 47; Canada 47 seconds against U.S. 39; Canada 46 thirds against U.S. 44; Canada 35 fourths against U.S. 17. The money value of the sheep prizes won by Canada is $6,800, which, added to the $5,600 won for cattle and horses, makes a total of $14,400. The total amount offered by the World's Fair and Live Stock Association foots up to about $30,000, so that Canada has already captured about half of it, with a good chance of getting more yet. Two horses from Calgary, Alberta, shown by Mr. Turner, were awarded, respectively, a second and a fourth prize, and according to good judges they deserved even better than that.

About all that remains of the Canadian dairy exhibit is the big cheese, weighing eleven tons. It plays to a full house every day. The stairway leading up to it is so badly worn as to be almost unsafe. The big cheese was made from the milk of 10,000 cows, milked by 666 dairy maids, the milk weighing over 103 tons, or 24,370 gallons. It has been purchased by Lipton, the great English provision dealer.

The educational exhibit of Canada is unsurpassed by any in the Liberal Arts building. A great celebrity from Europe said the Ontario educational exhibit was a perfect model of what such an exhibit should be. The North-West section, while necessarily small compared with others, is one on which the Council of Public Instruction is to be congratulated. It is a representative exhibit and contains some excellent work. The schools represented by samples of examination papers in arithmetic, algebra, grammar, history, euclid and other subjects are: Regina, St. Albert, Indian Head, Moosomin, Wide Awake, Moose Jaw, Lacombe, Prince Albert, St. Joachim, Whitewood, Wolseley and Calgary. Extremely neat and creditable samples of kindergarten work from the Regina school are shown, while around the court are photos of prairie scenes and principal buildings in some of the North-West towns, and maps drawn by pupils, among the maps being two, the work of Maud Smith and Winnifred Benson, of Regina, being exceptionally fine. One of the most notable exhibits here is a relief map done by pupils of Moose Jaw school. The best drawing in the exhibit is a pencil picture of a young lady, executed by Miss Estella Hamilton, of Moosmin. A novelty in the way of a composition is one on "The life of a grey goose," by pupils of Moose Jaw school. There are also included in the exhibit a number of exercise books, nicely illuminated in neat designs by the pupils of various schools and an interesting collection of dried plants from the College, Prince Albert. The North West educational exhibit has been pronounced by hundreds of visitors to be most creditable, and coming from so young a country, one of the most remarkable at the World's Fair.

In the handsome court devoted to Canada in the Manufactures building, which contains 44 acres of floor space, is found the very interesting exhibit of the Indian Department. Here may be seen among other articles an exhibits showing the wonderful skill and intelligence which under wise training the Indians of the North-West have attained a complete type, filled with curios, skins, mats, etc., also ropes, heads, stuffed birds and animals, domestic hides tanned by the Indians, models on Industrial School buildings in the North-West, iron harrows, oil paintings and paintings on velvet, wood work of various descriptions and a printing office in full operation.

Some other exhibits from the North-West are a collection of native woods in the Forestry building and a very good collection of fish in the Fisheries building.

As was stated in my first letter, there is not the least doubt that Canada in general, and the North-West particularly will derive greater benefit from the World's Fair than any other country or state that had its products on view at the Exposition.

J. J. YOUNG.

The Empire says:—Men who know the farming districts of Manitoba and the North-West read with amazement of the rushes of thousands of land famished men and women into wastes like Oklahoma and the Indian territory recently thrown open to settlers, while the finest land in the world can be had in the Canadian North West for the asking. But the difference between the men who engage in land rushes and those who go to Manitoba to settle is that the former are speculators eager to make money out of town sites, while the latter are men in search of location where they can make homes for themselve and children. The Cherokee strip is made up of towns where liquor and lawlessness go hand in hand, where everyone holds land for sale and where there is little effort at settlement. After a few years the towns are deserted and the reverts to its original condition of worthlessness. Not so in the Canadian North West. There every acre broken is a permanent improvement to be added to year by year, until the whole shall be brought brought under cultivation to the profit of the inhabitants generally. Better this slow but sturdy growth, laying the foundation of future prosperity, that rushes which have no stability in them. The cyclone swept plains of Dakota and Montana have been lauded as the heaven of the American agriculturlist and stockmen, but they who were lured thither have lived to find out their mistake. Had they gone into the Canadian North West where the land is fertile and climatic disturbances rare, they would now be rich land owners instead of impoverished denizens of a poor land. Many of them have already sought to rectify their error by emigrating to Canada, and doubtless many more will follow when they find it to their advantage to do so. The poor farmer of Kansas, Missouri and the Western States is not in the same class as the Canadian farmer. The latter gets better prices for his products, he lives under conditions which surely hedge round life and property; he has the advantage of a banking system admitted to be the safest and soundest of any country, and he lives in security which the American farmer does not know. Crop failures, financial disasters, train robberies, shootings, murders and horrible lynchings form the burden of the daily news from the States, while peace, contentment and prosperity dwell on this side the border, where the Law is firmly administered, and, therefore respected.

DAIRYING.

There is no industry to which the farmer of to day can turn his attention to with a greater hope of making a good and profitable trade than that of dairying. Good butter is always readily sought after and consequently commands a ready market at the highest market price. A great many of our leading farmers give their attention to either grain raising, or stock raising, and some to both, while but few give dairying a prominent position among the farming industries. If those who do make butter would give more attention to it, there would not be so much inferior butter brought to the market.

It is our intention in this article, to give a few of the most important point requisite for good butter-making as are advocated by some experienced and successful butter-makers. We do this because we believe that every pound of good butter made in this district over and above what is required for home consumption may be profitably exported. But, in order that butter may find a ready market and prove a profitable branch of the farming industry, it must be of first-class quality, because the more readily will a market be found for its disposal. Then let those who make butter for sale, even if the quantity be but small, make only an A1 article, and to do so it is necessary to give the proper attention to the various steps required,

Every farmer should have a good milk house in which to keep the milk, so that it may not only be kept clean, but free from all impurities that may arise from the surrounding circumstances. The place in which the cows are milked should be kept carefully clean, so that no impurities will be imbibed by the milk. The temperature at which cream is churned should be most carefully attended to, and for this purpose every person who makes butter, and no matter how small the quantity, should have a thermometer that is used by dairymen and the cost of which is about twenty-five cents This small expense will time and time again repay itself, while it will save butter makers in cold weather unnecessary labor in churning, or will save what is still more vexatious, the making of soft, white butter, which results from the cream being too warm when churned. There should be no guess work about butter making. Certain principles should be followed out and strictly adhered to, if farm rs intend to make good marketable butter. Before churning, cream should be ripened, and for that purpose must be brought to a temperture of about 70° This should be done by placing the cream jars in hot water and stirring the cream at the same time until it reaches t temperature required. Cream should never be heated near the fire as it is apt to injure the fat globules. The temperature at which cream should be churned varies, but 58° or 60° may safely be tried. Butter should never be worked with the hands, because they, being warm, will spoil the grain quicker than anything else. If the butter is put up for the home market, it should be made into pound rolls and neatly wrapped in paper prepared for the purpose. Farmers who make butter during the winter months should have good comfortable stables for their milk cows, as they will not only save food, but will get more milk by doing so. There should also be great care in having proper ventilation, as cattle never thrive well in badly ventilated stables.

CHEESE.

Canada has again secured a wonderful triumph at the World's Fair in her second exhibition of cheese. This was a still greater victory that the one won by the June exhibit. Out of 530 exhibits from Canada there were 490 awards.

Nine of the exhibits from Canada secured 99½ points out of a possible one hundred, of which five were from Ontario and four from Quebec.

In Chedden cheese made previous to 1893, Canada took 103 rewards and the United States none. In the same cheese made this year Canada took 369 awards, while the United States 46.

In June there were 667 exhibits from Canada and the United States. Of this number 162 were from Canada and 505 from the United States. Canada secured 126 awards and the United States 9

This is showing for Canada and beyond a doubt is a most phenominal victory for the cheese manufacturers of this country. Two of the judges were from the United States and one from Canada.

The Toronto Globe thus comments on the cheese industry of Canada:—

The only element of sadness which enters into the jubilations over these results in the feeling that so far as cheese goes we shall soon have no more worlds to conquer. There is no use pointing us to the British market, for it is ours already. Yet even there expansion is going on. In 1889 our export was valued at $8,871,205, in 1890 at $9,319,731, in 1891 at $9,481-3.3 and in 1892 at $11,593,690. The progress of this industry is one of the history of this country. It is not many years since Canadian cheese was scarcely regarded as of appreciable value in our exports, and was chiefly known for its execrable quality. Now we lead the world, both in quality and quantity of our export.

The lesson to be learned from this history is that what has been done in regard to cheese may be done in regard to the other products of our soil and industry. There is room for development along the lines of raising live stock, especially cattle and swine. Great Britain imports enormous quantities of the products of these animals, and the trade is profitable and well suited to the country. The progress of the cheese industry is also an object in economics. It is not the result of protection. There is a duty on cheese but nobody can pretend to say that it has had anything to do with the development of the industry, when the great market for the product is the free market of Great Britain. The industry has prospered because of the brains and energy of the cheese makers because of intelligent co operation and the dissemination, largely through the aid of the Ontario Government, of information as to improved methods. It is the great free trade industry of Canada, and all the exports of protection industries put together cannot compare with the cheese export in value.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Belleville.

A terrible shooting accident occured at Willoughby this morning, at the residence of Mr. R. McIvor. It appears that an elder son of Mr. McIvor was just returning from shooting when his father called the boy to come to him. The boy took the gun to the door of the house and handed it to a younger child to take inside. In doing so, the gun by some means was exploded, the charge entering the back of an infant, sitting on an elder sister's knee. The poor child was instantly, and the little nurse got a few grain of shot in her her arm, but fortunately was not seriously injured. The accident was a terrible shock to the family, and Mr. and Mrs. McIvor have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.

ASSASSINATION

Mayor Harrison, of C shot dead at his home,

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Carter Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, ex congressman, ex-county commissioner, editor, capitalist, and author, was assassinated in his own residence at 531 So uth A-hland avenue, this evening at 9 o'clock. Three bullets entered his body and within one hour and twelve minutes after the first shot was fired death ensued. The man who did the shooting was arrested and locked up at the Desplaines street station. There the man gave his name as Patrick Eugene Prendergast. He was at one time a member of the Chicago police force. The incidents that led up to the killing shows that it was premeditated and c o.

DELIBERATELY PLANNED

At 7:45 o'clock in the evening a man ran up the front steps of Mr. Harrison's residence and rang the bell. Mary Sanner, the servant, answered the bell and told the man, outside asked for Mr. Harrison. She said he would have to wait a moment as Mr. Harrison was asleep on the sofa in the parlor, at the same time going back into the parlor to tell him, leaving the door open. In a moment Mr. Harrison came out into the hall. In an instant the man had drawn a revolver and fired the shot entering the abdoman just above the naval. Two more shots rang out an instant later, the first of which entered the mayor's body under the left arm and

PENETRATED THE HEART.

Mr. Harrison when the first shot was fired, had started towards the door and the second shot struck him when within a few feet from the assassin. Mr. Harrison was so close to the muzzle of the revolver when the third shot was fired that the bullet shattered one of the knuckles of left hand and the powder burned the flesh. Mr. Harrison's coachman who was in the rear of the house when the first shot was fired, ran into the hall and fired three shots at the murderer after he carried out the front door. The murderer stopped for an instant, turned about and fired a shot at the coachman. He then ran down the front steps and ran rapidly north on Ashland avenue.

Mayor Harrison after the last shot was fired, stepped into the parlor and started towards the dining room. He had taken but a few steps, however, when he in the hall way in the rear of the house. His son Preston who was upstairs at the time of the shooting, ran down stairs and was at his father's side in an instant. Mr. Harrison said, "I am shot, Preston, and cannot live. Where is Annie?" Mr Harrison hastily left his father's side and rushed out upon the street in pursuit of the assassin. In the meantime, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, who lived across the street, had started for the Harrison residence, as they had heard the shooting. They saw a man running up Ashland avenue, and met the son Preston in pursuit. Young Mr. Harrison stopped long enough to inform his neighbor of the terrible affair and then started in PURSUIT OF THE MURDERER.

The pursuers, who had been reinforced by an officer and several citizens gained rapidly on the man. On they raced until they reached Desplaines street, when the fleeing man again turned to the north and in a few moments had reached the Desplaines street police station. He walked in and approached the sergeant at the desk and he was about to speak when the foremost of the crowd of pursuers rushed breathlessly into the station. "Lock that man up," said the coachman, "he has killed mayor Harrison." In an instant the sergeant was out from behind the desk and catching hold of the man's arm pulled him within the wire enclosure as though to preserve his life from a crowd which was gathering with astonishing rapidity. Without waiting to register the prisoner, he was quickly taken behind and placed behind the bars. The station was then cleared of the excited people.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., October, 1893.

ALL WASHINGTON NEWS

tastes of silver and gold. The treasury has reduced the gold reserve to 81 millions the lowest point reached and it will probably take nearly the whole of it to meet this years deficit. The post office receipts are running behind last years about six, ten thousand dollars a day or $45,000 for the first two weeks of this month.

RUIC INTEREST

in the silver debate is so great that the senate galleries are crowded day and night many women even being present at the night sessions and some staying until after midnight. On the streets the passer hear silver and gold and banks and labor and low prices discussed with much zeal. "Yer see its dis dis erway, le banks takes de money and dey won't let it out again" is the theory of one laborer overheard. Probably he never had $5 Sunday morning in his life.

COMPROMISE VS. CLOTURE.

The senatorial pot is boiling lively under a close cover. Will the silver Democrats, silver Republicans, and moderate [illegible] Democrats agree on a compromise? If they do and [illegible] it will be said to have named July, 1894 as the latest date for purchase of silver under the Sherman law. The compromisers suggest July, 1895 or some of them Jan., 1895 and a few repeal Republican compromisers are inclined to follow Senator Quay's proposition that the Sherman silver purchase law stand until 1896. If the silver people combine with the repeal Republicans it may take wind at once [illegible] calle. But the race wont be determined until the fall of 1896. While some of the Republicans are suggesting compromise and an extension of the Sherman law those tentative offers do not include the increase of coinage contemplated by the Democratic propositions. On this account the latter be op.o ed by a largemaj crity of Republicans and by some Democrats who fear that so much silver coin cannot be kept at par without the issue of bonds.

SENATOR HILL

Is getting many words of praise because of his energetic advocacy of a rule to put an end to debate. Voorhees has adopted Hill's proposition and the silver fight is to be mixed up with a struggle to amend the rules. It will be impossible to amend the rules unless the presiding officer of Senate agrees not to entertain dilatory proceedings to prevent the majority from making such amendment. The same filibustering and endless debate can be used to block amendment of rules as have been used to prevent repeal of the silver purchase law. Unless the presiding officer accepts the views of constitutional lawyers including many Senators and unless a majority of the Senate holds that there is no constitutional rule, law custom or right, to prevent the adoption or amendment of the rules by a majority vote, the minority can defeat and every measure they please. Sooner or later the Senate must provide means for voting down a minority. If this is don now the pot is likely to boil over into the fire and stir up a political smoke. Parties may be made and unmade thereby.

STREET CAR ETHICS.

What Should Be Done When the Conductor Doesn't Ask for the Fare.

If you ride in a street car and the conductor forgets to collect your fare, is it right or wrong for you to leave him in ignorance of the fact and get off without paying the five cents of your own accord?

That is a delicate question in street car ethics, but before deciding to keep still and save your money it would perhaps be wise to reflect on the experience of a lady who boarded a Madison avenue car a few days ago and rode without paying a cent for the ride, says the New York Herald.

"If that conductor does not know enough to ask me for the fare," she said to herself, this fair Harlemite, "it is certainly not my business to look out for the interests of the company. I consider it a matter of principle not to give up my nickel."

So she reasoned with herself, but alas for such reasoning! The conductor out there on the back platform was by no means a fool; on the contrary, he was a student of human nature, particularly of feminine human nature; and if he had not asked the young lady from Ninety-fourth street to give him the regulation five cents it was not, as she supposed, because he had overlooked her, but because he wanted to get some fuller knowledge as to the workings of the Harlem conscience.

All the way down to Fourteenth street, four good miles, the horses carried that lady, and then she, all serene, prepared to leave the car without paying. The conductor sighed, and his barometer of human nature sank way down. The struggle had been fought and the battle lost. However he reflected that was no reason why the company should lose five cents.

"Excuse me, madam," he said, politely, as here patent leather boot touched the lower step, "did I get your fare?"

There was a merry twinkle in his eye as he said this.

Ah! that was a terrible moment for the Harlem lady. To say "yes" would be to tell a lie; to say "no" would be to admit that she had been cheating. So she told a fib, only a little one, however, and merely to save the situation.

"Why, didn't you?" she asked, innocently, raising a pair of blue eyes in which there was no guile. "Oh, I am so sorry," and with that she dropped a nickel from her daintily gloved fingers into the conductor's outstretched hand.

"Pretty well done, that, wasn't it?" said the back platform philosopher to a passenger who had watched the transaction. "These women folks do beat the deuce for looking innocent. You wouldn't have thought that girl had been calculatin' on my tacklin' her for that five cents, but she had, just the samee. Did you see how she had the nickel all ready there in her glove? Oh, yes, we have lots of 'em like her every day. But, I say, she's a daisy, ain't she?"

AROUND THE CAPITAL.

Mrs. Cockrell, the senator's wife, has been chosen regent, for Missouri, of the Daughters of the Rebellion.

It was not Andrew Jackson who said, or maintained, that "to the victors belong the spoils." It was Silas Wright, a senator from New York, who was one of the most formidable debaters in those days of great men.

Congressman Stone, of Kentucky, owes his life to his wife, who, when a young girl, found him lying dangerously wounded after one of the battles of the rebellion, and taking him to her father's house nursed him back to health.

Secretary Noble and Senator Hiscock resemble each other to a marked degree. Mr. Noble holds himself very straight and is prim to a nicety in the matter of dress, while Mr. Hiscock slouches about in a listless fashion, wears negligee neckties and a half-buttoned vest.

The couple said they were rain-soaked and had too far to go to lose time. Truth is sometimes as strange as fiction.

The famous Chicago grain broker, "Old Hutch," visited the World's fair recently. He carried a sandwich lunch in his pocket and assured his friends that he is living comfortably on a dollar a day.

Baron Alphonse Rothschild has had one of his eyes removed as the result of an unfortunate accident which occurred last autumn when he was out hunting on his French estate with a party of friends.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Strait, a popular minister in the Christian denomination in Indiana two or three years ago and not much heard of since, was recognized in Cincinnati recently acting as a hostler in a livery stable.

How many persons know that Ripans Tabules, now so largely advertised and used, are simply the favorite prescription of their family doctor prepared in a scientific manner and a form convenient for handling, conveyance, preservation and use? In the great hospitals of the metropolitan cities, where the wealthy find better care than in their own luxurious homes, the ingredients of Ripans Tabules are administered to thousands of rich and poor alike with beneficial effect. They are the main dependance of the most eminent physicians in cases of derangement of the digestive organs, such as dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and other ills connected with the stomach, liver and bowels. For some years one of the principal hospitals in New York City has used a formula, differing slightly from the common one, that has been found of unusual efficacy. Through the commendations of physicians its mission of healing has been so widely and rapidly extending that it finally seemed desirable to prepare the prescriptions in a convenient form, so as to make it available to the whole public, at a moderate price, and to announce the fact through the recognized medium for securing publicity—advertisements in the columns of the newspapers of the land. This has been done, and now the time is not far distant when every family of intelligence will be as certain to possess a supply of Ripans Tabules as a clock or a cooking stove. They are already to be found on sale almost everywhere, and any druggist or dealer will supply them. A box, containing six vials, is sold for 75 cents, and a gross package, containing four boxes, for $2. They will be sent by mail, post paid, to any address, on receipt of price, by the Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

In the interests of those parties who would like to visit the Chicago Worlds Fair but are unable to do so on account of the rush of business and the many exigencies attending the harvesting of our large crop we have been successful in getting the principal duplicate part of the grand agricultural exhibit brought to Prince Albert to demonstrate this fact we have on view and in working order in our spacious show rooms,

The McCormick Binder,

A Machine of Steel,

Which beats the world's record in the field and which we unhesitatingly recommend to be the lightest draft of all the many self binding harvesters.

Its durability and capacity have never been questioned. It is the King of machines and proudly floats the banner, "The Best in the World."

THE M'CORMICK NO. 4 STEEL MOWER.

This machine is also on view and is the wonder of the age and needs no comment. Suffice to say it stands on its own merits, and in words of the immortal Shakespeare, we simply say, "It is advertised by its loving friends."

A large gang of Moore & Macdowall's men left for the lumber camps north of the river this week. They had a lively time crossing the river on the ferry, on accountt of the floating ice and ice formed on the shores, a channel through which had to be cut in order to make the landings. The present low stage of w ter added considerably to the difficulty of crossing Mr. Fenton, the company's manager, is evidently a worker and up to this kind of business, superintended the crossing.
